STRENUOUS SESSION OF LEGISLATURE OF 1911 ENDS

Adjourned Sine Die at 2:30 O'clock Yesterday Afternoon—The Work of The Final Day.

Raleigh, March 8.—The 1911 session of the North Carolina General Assembly adjourned sine die at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon, the wait from 11 o'clock to the hour of adjournment having been necessary to get the final batch of ratified bills.

Speaker Dowd said this afternoon that the conduct of this general assembly has fully justified his expression in the beginning of the session that this was one of the very ablest and best legislatures the State has ever had; that they have taken good care of all the State's interests that needed taking care of and imposed no hardships on any part of her worthy citizenship, and that the people of the State may well be congratulated on the legislative condition at the close of this session of the general assembly.

Lieutenant Governor Newland, of the Senate, heartily endorsed this statement of Speaker Dowd, as an expression on the outcome of the legislative session just closed.

The House.

The House convened at 9:30 o'clock, Speaker Dowd in the chair. The prayer was by Dr. O'Kelly, of the First Baptist church.

Notice came from the House that the Senate had amended the bill to provide license tax on strawberry brokers for the benefit of the Eastern Carolina Truckers Association and a call was made for a conference committee. Mr. Ray, of Macon, objected to any further "messin'" as he expressed it, with this class of legislation. There were explanations by Kellum and Mitchell that caused him to recede from his position and allow the conference committee since it was understood that the state treasury was to be safeguarded from paying money not realized from license taxes of berry brokers.

The House concurred in the Senate amendment to the sub-contractor's lein bill that retained Rowan in the act along with Durham, Wake, Guilford.

Ovation To Confederate Drum Corps.

The House was apprised of the approach of the L. O'B. Branch Camp Confederate Drum Corps, the famous corps composed now of only three veteran members—J. J. Lewis, W. T. Johnson, W. B. Royster. As these veterans filed in getting a wonderful amount of stirring music out of drum and fife the members of the House stood and applauded wildly. A collection for the three aged members of the Drum Corps gave a substantial turn to the honors heaped upon them. Later there was a call for "Sons of Veterans" to be given a chance and Representative Williams of Buncombe was put in the chair in the place of Uncle Joe Cannon McGill and he responded with special eloquence to calls for a speech. "Dixie," "Till We Meet Again," and other popular songs were rendered, people in the lobbies and galleries joining as the members of the Drum Corps passed out of the hall.

No Extra Pay For Electrocutioner.

The Senate bill for the increase of the pay of the warden of the penitentiary on account of the state duty of officiating for electrocutions of condemned criminals, was called up for final action, having come over from Tuesday night when it was forced over through objection to the final reading, with the result that threats on the part of opponents of the measure to raise the question of the lack of a quorum, forced an agreement to table the bill.

The Senate.

President Newland convened the Senate at 9:30 o'clock, Rev. Mr. Eubanks making the invocation.

Although the number of vacant seats in the Senate chamber has been increasing gradually since the pay limitation was reached last Saturday night, the rollcall today was answered by thirty-two senators as follows: Armstrong, Baggett, Barber, Barnes, Bassett, Bellamy, Brown, Carpenter, Cobb, Coxe, Davis, Graham, Green, Hartsell, Hawkins, Hicks, Hobgood, Holden, Johnson, Kitchin, London, Long, Martin, of Bun-

TWO CANDIDATES COME FORWARD FOR COMMISSIONER

J. G. Foushee, Jr., And Thomas J. Murphy Desire to Become Members of Greensboro's First Commission.

The campaign for the Greensboro commissionerships, which was formally opened Wednesday morning by the announcement of E. A. Brown, and which was given another boost later in the day by the announcement of J. G. Foushee, Jr., for the position of Commissioner of Public Works, has added interest injected today by the announcement of Thomas J. Murphy as a candidate for Mayor and Commissioner of Public Accounts and Finances.

There is now a candidate in the field for each of the three commissionerships, and there are more to follow. In fact, several other announcements are expected within the next few days and the campaign will speedily reach a high pitch of interest, no doubt.

Mr. Foushee, whose card appears in The Telegram this morning, has been employed for several years in street construction and road building and feels that he is peculiarly fitted for the position he seeks.

Mr. Murphy is a former Mayor of the city, having served in that capacjty for two years. He is a successful lawyer and is Secretary and Treasurer of the Gate City Building and Loan Association. Mr. Murphy is recognized as an able business man, and his friends believe him to be eminently qualified to fill the office of Mayor under the commission form of government.

SWAMPY LANDS TO BE RECLAIMED

The drainage law for Reedy Fork and Haw Rivers, the enactment of which was secured by Representative Dillard, of Guilford, is a measure that will no doubt be of great benefit to many farmers of the county affected. This bill provides for the drainage of the two streams and tributaries and will mean the reclamation of thousands of acres of land that at present is a swamp covered with cat-tails and other vegatation usually found in marshy places. Thousands of barrels of corn and hundreds of tons of hay could be produced annually from soil that has been beyond redemption because of the drainage facilities.

The bill provides that the County Commissioners shall have all lands subjected to overflow from the above rivers or their tributatries and all swamp and marsh lands adjacent surveyed by a competent engineer and a map made showing the number of acres to be drained. The engineer shall also submit an estimate of the cost of properly draining the land shown on the map and show on the map how the lands can be drained to best advantage.

The commissioners shall then have the work done, by public bidder for the contract or otherwise, and pay for same. After the work is done the County Commissioners shall select a jury and this body shall go over the lands drained and ascertain as nearly as possible the benefits to be derived by each land owner. They shall also decide as to the extent any landowner is damaged because of such drainage and the landowners shall pay their proportionate part of the cost of the work, according to the benefits derived. The county shall also pay such damages as the jury shall award against the county. Each party can take the jury award into Superior court if it is thought that the matter has not been properly considered by the jury.

ASPHALT FOR ASHEBORO ROAD

The county has contracted with the Indian Refining Company, which had charge of the work on the High Point road, to put an asphalt covering on the Asheboro street road from the city limits to the Buffalo Graded School, a distance of a mile and a half. This road was macadamized a number of years ago and is about worn out.

The cost of putting down the asphalt will be something like $1,000 per mile as a good deal of crushed stone will have to be put on top of what is left of the macadam foundation before the oil can be poured on. After the oil is put on the road it is covered with sand and the roadbed is as smooth as a plank floor. It is claimed that the road is better after six months use than at first.

The company has about completed asphalting the Spring Garden street road to a point beyond the park.

Chicago Glee Club in Lyceum Course

The Trombone Quartet, which was first introduced by the Chicago Glee Club, will have a prominent part on the program when this organization appears in West Market annex tonight. This is the final number in the Greensboro Lyceum course.

This company of entertainers come to Greensboro with the most favorable criticisms and the program tonight wil no doubt be above the average in a lyceum course entertainment. In addition to vocal and instrumental solos, duets and quarters there will be impersonations by Mr. Dixon. The entertainment will begin promptly at 8 o'clock and all who do not hold season tickets should get tickets at the door earlier.

The Birmingham, (Ala.) News says: The audience which greeted the Chicago Glee Club was a most enthusiastic and appreciative one, indeed, and enjoyed to the fullest extent the excellent and varied program which was so superbly rendered.

The St. Paul (Minn.) Dispatch says of Mr. Dixon: Mr. Dixon proved his versatility by appearing in character work, giving several of the Riley poems and afterward achieving even better success with his portrayal of the old time class-leader giving out the lines of a hymn.

Mail Clerk on N. & S. Injured

Raleigh, March 8.—In an accident at Middlesex, on the Norfolk & Southern last night Mail Clerk J. R. Tally had his shoulder badly wrenched. The passenger train due here at 8 o'clock from Norfolk ran into a switch that had been left open by a freight train in taking a siding to let the passenger train pass. The engine of the passenger train had its pilot knocked off. The caboose and a couple of cars of the freight were badly smashed and derailed.

Southern Having Lasting Job Done.

The Southern is putting a new floor in the baggage room of the passenger station. Judging from the thickness of the timber being used as flooring the job will never have to be repeated, The flooring is three or four inches thick and is of good quality of pine.

COMMISSION WILL APPOINT ASSESSORS

NEW MACHINERY FOR ASSESSING TAXES WILL BE PUT IN MOTION THROUGHOUT THE STATE—ASSESSOR FOR EACH COUNTY.

Raleigh, March 8.—The North Carolina Corporation Commission, as state tax commission, will early in April appoint a tax assessor for each county in North Carolina and set in motion the new machinery for assessing taxes throughout the State, provided by the revenue and machinery acts of the assembly just adjourned. These county assessors are newly created and will have supervision of the work of the township and ward assessors in listing both real and personal property and assessing real estate, a work that recurs each fourth year under the North Carolina system of assessment.

The new act requires the corporation commission as State tax commission, to visit each county and instruct the assessors and to finally pass upon the equitableness of the standards of valuation applied in the various counties in reassessing property. The act multiplies the work of the corporation commission considerably and provides for $500 additional compensation for each of the three members, on account of this additional burden.

Attorneys Dissolve Law Firm

The partnership heretofore existing between ex-Judge Thomas J. Shaw and Charles A. Hines, attorneys at law, has been dissolved by mutual consent. Judge Shaw will continue to have an office in the Southern Life and Trust building for the present, and Mr. Hines will open an office in a few days elsewhere in the city.

Deaver—Saintsing.

Justice of the Peace D. H. Collins Tuesday afternoon united in marriage Wliliam H. Deaver and Miss Geneva Blanche Saintsing, both of this city. The ceremony was performed in Justice Collins' office in the presence of several friends.

C. B. A. DIRECTORS MEET IN CHARLOTTE

Directors of the Carolina Baseball Association will meet in Charlotte Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, having been called to meet by President J. H. Wearn. Business of considerable importance is to be transacted at this meeting, the last one, save one, to be held before the opening of the season. It is thought that every club in the circuit will be represented at the meeting.

The question of putting a ban on the spit-ball will be discussed by the directors, but from what can be learned it appears as though the saliva-covered sphere will still be in use this year, if there be a pitcher who wants to fling it, Placing a ban on this kind of ball was advocated strongly by Manager Laye Cross of the Charlotte club prior to the meeting some weeks ago when a committee was appointed to draft a playing schedule for the season, but the directors took no action, there only being a few of them present, the absent ones being represented by proxy.

At the former meeting President Wearn, who has been at the association's head since its organization, tendered his resignation, but it was not accepted and he was forced to accept again for this year, but with the understanding that the directors should give him all the assistance possible. Mr. Wearn's business will not permit of him devoting as much of his time to baseball as he would like and he asked to be relieved, but inasmuch as he had been the guiding spirit through all vicissitudes, he was importuned to hold just a little longer and this he reluctantly consented to do. There is no intimation that he will again ask to be relieved of the duties of the office.

In North Carolina, Charlotte, Winston-Salem and Greensboro compose half of the association and South Carolina is represented by clubs in Spartanburg, Greenville and Anderson. The playing schedule has not been completed and will not be discussed at the meeting next Tuesday afternoon.

Secretary Todd of Charlotte and President Cely of Greenville compose the committee which is to draft this schedule and they have done some work on it, but not enough to submit any kind of definite schedule to all of the directors who are to assemble here.

SMALL FIRE IN LIVERY STABLE

This morning at 3 o'clock fire was discovered in the livery stable of G. S. Miles & Co., opposite The Telegram office. An alarm from box 32 called the firemen out and in less than a minute the Eagles had a stream of water on the blaze. It seems that a quantity of hay in the loft became ignited and burned like tinder for a few minutes. Luckily it had gotten but little start and was easily extinguished. A number of horses were in the stable but these were soon gotten out.

The building is owned by D. E. Thomas. The damage was slight—a hole burned in the roof and a small quantity of feed reduced to ashes.

DAVID C. SCOTT OF INDIANAPOLIS DEAD

PASSED AWAY YESTERDAY MORNING AT RESIDENCE OF J. W. SCOTT IN GREENSBORO—FUNERAL IN INDIANAPOLIS.

David C. Scott, of Indianapolis, Ind., died yesterday morning at 6 o'clock at the home of his brother, J. W. Scott, 306 North Forbis street, following an illness of some months. Mr. Scott, accompanied by Mrs. Scott came to Greensboro several months ago to visit his brother in hope that the change of climate would prove beneficial, being in feeble health at that time. He grew weaker and for the past two months had been confined to his room. Death was due to a complication of diseases.

Mr. Scott was a native of Guilford county, being a son of the late Dr. Wm. D. Scott and was about 70 years of age. He served with distinction in the Confederate cavalry during the Civil war and soon after the surrender went west and settled in Indiana. He is survived by his wife and two daughters.

The remains were taken back to Indianapolis, Ind., for interment, leaving here on No. 36 yesterday afternoon. Mr. Scott was a Pythian and C. C. McLean accompanied the remains to Indianapolis.

Interest Growing at Westminster

At Westminster church last night Dr. A. R. Shaw preached a strong sermon to parents. A good sized congregation was present.

This afternoon at the three o'clock service Dr. Shaw will deliver a sermon to children; and tonight at the seven o'clock service his text will be, "It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God."

BOY SCOUTS DRILLED.

The Boy Scouts were out last night drilling for the Civic Day parade tomorrow. About seventy-five lusty lads were under the direction of the recruiting officer of the U. S. Army. The boys were the cynosure of all eyes as with beating drums and flashing swords they marched down the street with a precision that would have done credit to a well drilled military organization.

New Iron Bridge is Completed

The County Commissioners met yesterday morning for the purpose of inspecting the new iron bridge across North Buffalo creek on Summit avenue extended, but the weather was too severe to be outside any more than possible so the trip was postponed.

The bridge, which has just been completed is seventy feet in length and 16 feet wide. It is erected on concrete piers on each side of the stream and the middle is supported by heavy iron beams above the bridge. The structure was erected by the Owego Bridge Company at a cost of $1,600.

The bridge is located just above the old wooden bridge in order that a bad crook in the road can be eliminated. Heretofore it has been impossible to see a person coming from the opposite side of the bridge until one was nearly on it. With the road straightened the bridge and roadway on each side will be visible for some distance. The short cut to the approaches of the bridge will have to be macadamized before the bridge can be thrown open to the public.

Holder's Case Nolle Prossed

When the case of D. W. Holder was called in Municipal Court yesterday morning, the charge being keeping a house of ill-fame, the State asked that the case be nolle prossed with leave. The chief witness for the prosecution had suddenly and without notice left the city and without her it was useless to try the case. Holder contends that he was innnocent of the charge.

Roxie Burnham was arraigned on a similar charge, this case being nolle prossed with leave also.

Bob Allen was charged with assaulting L. W. Koons with a piece of scantling. He was required to pay a fine of $25 and costs, also Koons' drug and doctor bill. The assault was committed on March 2 at the place where both are employed as workmen.

HAULED TRAIN BACKWARD.

A box car split a switch near the Davie street crossing last night and blocked the track for some time. The Winston train was unable to turn around so the engine backed to the round house and turned around, after which it hooked on to the rear end and the train was carried to Winston "rear end foremost."

Worms

"Cascarets are certainly fine. I gave a friend one when the doctor was treating him for cancer of the stomach. The next morning he passed four pieces of a tape worm. He then got a box and in three days he passed a tape-worm 45 feet long. It was Mr. Matt Freck, of Millersburg, Dauphin Co., Pa. I am quite a worker for Cascarets. I use them myself and find them beneficial for most any disease caused by impure blood." Chas. E. Condon, Lewiston, Pa., (Mifflin Co.)

HAIR NATURALLY ABUNDANT.

When It Is Free of Dandruff, It Grows Luxuriantly.

Hair preparations and dandruff cures, as a rule, are sticky or irritating affairs that do no earthly good. Hair, when not diseased, grows naturally, luxuriantly. Dandruff is the cause of nine-tenths of all hair trouble, and dandruff is caused by a germ. The only way to cure dandruff is to kill the germ; and, so far, the only hair preparation that will positively destroy the germ is Newbro's Herpicide—absolutely harmless, free from grease, sediment, dye matter or dangerous drugs. It allays itching instantly; makes hair glossy and soft as silk. "Destroy the cause, you remove the effect." Sold by leading druggists. Soon Learned.

A Scottish gillie met the proffer of a nip from his master's flask with the protest that he "cudna drink oot o' a bottle."

Pressed, however, to try, he put the flask to his lips, and the sound of the steady gurgling never ceased until he handed back the empty flask.

"Hoots, Dugald," sadly observed the laird, as he held the flask upside down to confirm his astonished vision, "mebbe ye canna drink oot o' a bottle—but, hech, man, ye'd soon learn!"

He Made a Mistake.

A man from an up state town entered a conference in New York city and sat down near the press table. It was noticed that, though he appeared bewildered, the man was eager to be pleased. He clapped boisterously at the slightest provocation, and where others only smiled he would throw back his head and laugh loud and long. At the end of an hour or an hour and a half the man stopped his noisy applause and mirth, and, leaning toward a reporter, he whispered:

"Say, this is the white faced minstrel show, ain't it?"

"Why, no," the reporter answered. "The white faced minstrels are two doors below."

"What's this, then?" he inquired.

"This," said the reporter, "is the annual conference of the Egyptologists' society."

"Waal," said the crestfallen man, "I'll be!" And, with a look of disgust, he hurried from the hall.

A QUICK CHANGE.

It Saved the Captain From the Fury of "Fuss and Feathers."

General Winfield Scott was one of the most rigid martinets that ever held a command in the United States army. Early in his career he won the name of "Fuss and Feathers," and it stuck to him to the end. He had a terrific temper, and when in one of his tempestuous moods every one shrank from before him.

His suggestions were not strictly followed at the battle of Bull Run. When news of the disaster reached Washington his rage was fearful. He strode up and down his office, swinging his arms and shrieking like a wild man. In the midst of the outbreak Captain C., an Irishman and one of his aids, entered the room and saluted.

"The compliments of Prisident Lincoln, and he asks"—

The massive lunatic, his face aflame, wheeled about.

"Out of my presence! You are a traitor like the rest of them! Leave, at once!"

The dazed captain retreated in confusion. A few hours later the general sent for him. In fear and trembling, the Irishman presented himself.

"WHAT!" THUNDERED THE GENERAL.

"Captain C., I wish to apologize for my rudeness a short while ago," said the aged general in his most pompous manner. His words were so unexpected that the captain was rattled.

"It was a piece of dommed rudeness"—

"What!" thundered the general, starting to rise from his chair. The captain's Irish wit flashed to his aid.

"On my part to come into your prisence without your permission."

The cyclone was soothed, but when Captain C. passed outside he scratched his red head and muttered:

"I'd rather the old man would cuss me for two weeks than use tin seconds in apologizing. It wouldn't be half so trying."—Los Angeles Times.

OUTWITTED THE ORIENTALS.

An Experience With the Customs Officials at Kermanshah.

In eastern lands the collecting of customs dues is attended with perhaps more than ordinary fraud. In his book, "From Batum to Baghdad," Mr. W. B. Harris has told his experience with the customs officers of Kermanshah. The incident had its comical feature as well as its serious lesson:

Two hours later than I had intended we made a start and, proceeding through the long tunnel-like bazaars, emerged from the town. Here fate had annoyance in store for me. At the local custom house the guards wanted to search us and make us pay duty on our scanty baggage.

I had hired a mule to carry our saddlebags as far as Baghdad, using the owner of the mule, a wily old Arab who accompanied us, as a guide. These two, mule and man, the guards absolutely refused to let pass without my bestowing a perfectly illegal and illogical baksheesh. This I stoutly refused to do, and, knowing that in the east a show of temper is of no avail, I swallowed my wrath and argued coolly and collectedly with the soldiers.

Soon they confessed that they had no right to touch either me or any animal of mine, but they maintained that the mule and the rider were both Arabs and that therefore I could not interfere.

This was just what I wanted, and I solved the matter in a minute. I put the Arab on my horse and I rode his mule. There was no question about it then. The guards on their own confession could stop neither me nor my horse, and we rode quietly on amid the laughter of the men to change our mounts again fifty yards past the custom house.

GARBLED QUOTATIONS.

Popular Passages That Are Frequently Rendered Incorrectly.

Almost everybody who quotes at all misquotes. Nothing is more common than to hear:

A man convinced against his will
Is of the same opinion still.

This is an impossible condition of mind, for no one can be convinced of one opinion and at the same time hold to an opposite one. What Butler wrote was eminently sensible:

He that complies against his will
Is of his own opinion still.

A famous passage of Scripture is often misquoted thus: "He that is without sin among you let him cast the first stone." It should be, "Let him first cast a stone."

Sometimes we are told, "Behold, how great a fire a little matter kindleth," whereas St. James said, "Behold, how great a matter a little fire kindleth," which is quite a different thing.

We also hear that "a miss is as good as a mile," which is not as sensible or forcible as the true proverb, "A miss of an inch is as good as a mile."

"Look before you leap" should be "And look before you ere you leap."

Pope is generally credited with having written:

Immodest words admit of no defense,
For want of decency is want of sense, though it would puzzle any one to find the verses in his writings. They were written by the Earl of Roscommon, who died before Pope was born.

Franklin said, "Honesty is the best policy," but the maxim is of Spanish origin and may be found in "Don Quixote."—Pearson's Weekly.

C., for a reasonable length of time, for the erection and completion of a new Evangelical Lutheran church building to be erected at Greensboro, in accordance with plans and specifications, copies which may be had at the home of Rev. J. E. Shenk. The building committee of the First Lutheran church reserves the right to reject any and all bids. 10tl

The Brakeman Telephones— Do You?

"DON'T keep supper waiting. I don't know when I will get home."

When the wife of the brakeman on the railroad hears his cheery voice over the telephone, she doesn't worry—she knows he is all right.

His is a hazardous occupation. His absence would cause her uneasiness.

That's where the Bell Telephone in the home saves many anxious moments.

It's worth a great deal in times like that to have the local and long distance service of the Bell Telephone System.

Puzzled.

An aged colored man was passing a fish store when he stopped to examine a huge turtle chained in the doorway as an advertisement.

He had never seen a turtle before, and he prodded the strange creature curiously. Suddenly he popped his finger into his mouth with a howl of pain. After the finger had stopped bleeding he gazed at it ruefully, then eyed the turtle apprehensively.

"What's the matter, Rastus?" asked the fish dealer, with a grin.

"Nuffin', sah; nuffin' Ah was jest wonderin' whether Ah had been bit or stung."—Lippincott's.

The Artistic Temperament.

A famous singer was undergoing the ministration of the ship's barber.

"I 'opes," said the barber, "that we shall 'ave the pleasure of 'earin' you at the concert tonight."

"No," explained the famous singer. "I've had a long and exhausting season in America and within a few days I am to open in London. I have decided not to do anything on this voyage."

"It's the same way with me," said the barber understandingly. "When I'm hashore I never looks at a razor."—Success Magazine.

A Legal Holiday.

"Bindlesworth seems to rather look upon his wife with awe."

"Yes, I met him yesterday, and he wanted to borrow $5 from me. I asked him why he didn't go to his bank for it, and he replied with surprise that he was unable to conceal:

"'Why, bless me! I'd forgotten that the banks were open today, just the same. You see, this is my wife's birthday.'"—Chicago Record-Herald.

This Hard, Cruel World.

Mrs. Crawford—You can have all the bread and butter you want, but no more cake.

Willie—Say, ma, how is it I can never have a second helping of any of the things I like?—Lippincott's.

Cookery Notes

Panned Oysters.

For these savories use casseroles or cocottes a little deeper than those sold for shirring eggs. The squatty little brown ones with handles are ideal for this purpose. Butter them lightly and lay in each a round of toast cut to fit the bottom of the dish. This may be stamped out of bread with the cooky cutter or empty baking powder can, discarding the crusts and toasting the rounds. Moisten with a little oyster liquor, lay six or seven good sized oysters on the toast, sprinkle lightly with salt and pepper, dot with bits of butter; add if you like a tablespoonful of cream, though this is not an essential; set in an oven of steady heat and bake about ten minutes or until the oysters ruffle and crimp. Then serve at once in the pans in which they are cooked, setting them, of course, on a plate so as not to injure the table. Pass lemon with them and serve more toast as an accompaniment or thin slices of buttered brown bread.

Chocolate Layer Cake.

For a layer cake with a filling of chocolate cream mix half a cupful of butter with a cupful of sugar. After creaming add two beaten eggs and half a cupful of milk. Lift two teaspoonfuls of baking powder with one cupful and a half of flour and stir the moist ingredients into it. Let the mixture bake in two or three layers and when cold spread them with the following filling: Grate a quarter of a pound of chocolate. Melt it and add a quarter of a cupful of sugar and a teaspoonful of cornstarch. Measure out one cupful and a half of milk. Add a little to the mixture and put the rest over the stove to boil. When it boils add the mixture and continue to cook till it thickens, being careful to stir it constantly to prevent lumps from forming.

For Leftovers.

The squash leftover from dinner may be used up in pancakes. Have ready about a pint of cold mashed squash and add a tablespoonful of butter, a little salt, half a cupful of milk, an egg and half a cupful of flour sifted with a teaspoonful of baking powder. If the batter is too thin add more flour or if too stiff more milk. Drop the batter by tablespoonfuls on to a hot buttered griddle or a soapstone one and bake like other cakes of the kind Serve the cakes directly from the griddle with butter. If there are leftover corn and stewed tomatoes in the larder mix them, and when they begin to boil flavor with a little onion juice, half a teaspoonful of sugar and serve very hot.

Spiced Sweet Potatoes.

For this dish the potatoes must be perfectly sound and of fine flavor. Indifferent ones are not for this festal occasion. Select those of uniform size, wash clean, boil tender, skin and stand aside to become cold. Cut into quarter inch rounds, place a layer on the bottom of a buttered dish, dot with bits of butter and sprinkle with a mixture of brown sugar and cinnamon. Alternate layers of potato and seasoning until the dish is filled, finishing with plenty of butter. Cover and stand in the oven until thoroughly heated through, then uncover and brown. Serve at once without redishing.

Cream Puffs.

One cup boiling water poured on one-half cup butter and put in saucepan on stove. When boiling add one cup of flour, beating all the time. Let boil five minutes. When cold add three eggs well beaten; drop on buttered pans and bake thirty minutes.

Cream Filling.—One-half cup of sugar, three great spoons of flour, one egg poured into one pint of boiling milk; flavor Make a small hole in the side of the puffs with a knife and fill with the cream. This makes twelve.

Care of Earthenware Casseroles.

A point emphasized by the manufacturers of the best earthenware casseroles is that before using at all they should be placed in a pan or large kettle and completely covered with cold water. Bring slowly to a boil and then remove the pan from the fire, letting the ware cool in the water before taking out.

Avoid changing the temperature from hot to cold or cold to hot too abruptly, lest the ware be cracked.

A Fig Dessert.

How about molasses fig pudding? Do you know it? If not you might try it out on the family.

Mince very fine one half pound of figs and mix them with one half pound of finely grated breadcrumbs, six ounces of soft butter and enough molasses or best sirup to make into a paste. Butter a mold and fill it with the mixture, then boil or steam for one and one-half hours. Serve with cream, either plain or whipped.

Ginger Puffs.

One cup molasses, one cup sugar, one cup sweet milk, three-fourths cup butter or part butter and lard, one egg, one tablespoon soda, one tablespoon ginger, one tablespoon cassia, four and one-half cups flour. Drop in spoonfuls in a greased pan. You may think there is too much soda, but there is not.

A Bright Maid.

They are telling a story of the favored suitor of a Cleveland society girl who called at the house of his inamorata recently and found a new parlor maid at the door. "Is Miss Blank in? This is Mr. Dash," he explained.

The maid smiled brightly. "Oh, yes, sir," she replied, and led him into the drawing room.

Here he waited the better part of an hour, when he finally summoned the maid again. "Did you forget to tell Miss Blank that I was here?" he asked impatiently.

"No, sir," answered the new maid. "Miss Blank hasn't got back from shopping yet."

"But you told me she was in!"

"Yes, sir! She told me positively that she was always at home to you, sir."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Greensboro Telegram
Published Daily Except Monday at 208 South Davie Street

J. T. FAIN, Editor,
H. G. BRAXTON, Business Manager.

The Telegram's Phone is No. 59.

The Telegram is entered at the Postoffice in Greensboro, North Carolina, for transmission through the mails as Second Class Matter.

At this writing it seems that Richard Achilles Ballinger is going to stay resigned, which is one respect in which he is unlike Senator Joseph W. Bailey.

Ballinger resigned in good time. A Democratic Congress would probably have been troublesome for him to deal with.

"Malefactors of great wealth" obey the laws in Canada, just like the common people. We would do well to make a beginning just at that point in this country.

Full soon it will be up to a Democratic Congress to demonstrate that the men who compose it are not first cousins of the animal which is so well known as the party emblem.

The kalsomine industry ought to be in a most prosperous condition these days. In addition to the demand for it for legitimate purposes the quantity used in coating dirty politicians and unfit officials is enormous.

In the borough of Nuangola, near Wilkes-Barre, Pa., there are thirty-one voters and every man of the number is an officeholder. Commission government is not popular, it is said, in Nuangola and the voters there have decided that it is a mistake to try to run a township government on that plan. It is a great pity that all the professional politicians of the country cannot be isolated in a little Nuangola of their own, where all could hold offices for life.

Give us more business and less politics in Greensboro and in North Carolina. The offices must be filled, and it is the duty of good citizens to study public questions and public needs and vote to fill the offices with the best men, but let this be done in a business-like manner. Let us give attention in Greensboro mainly to the improvement of the city, to its development, to the matter of securing capital, industries and people; and away with the ceaseless discussion of politics. One of the features of the commission form of government which ought to commend it to business men is the fact that it means less political discussion and turmoil than was possible under the old system.

The Durham Herald thinks there are too many lawyers in the North Carolina Legislature. The Telegram has not counted them, but if there are more than a dozen there are too many. It is a safe plan to have a few good lawyers in the Legislature, but the remainder of the members ought to be business men—and among business men, include farmers. All the States of the Union are in need of fewer lawyers and politicians in legislative halls. More plain business men are needed. North Carolina, probably, is in the same predicament as other States, in this respect. Elect a Legislature composed of plain, sensible, honest business men and intelligent farmers, with a sprinkling of honest lawyers and other professional men, and there will be a session of the body which will call forth less criticism from the people than North Carolina Legislatures of recent years have been subjected to.

ONE CAUSE OF HIGH COST OF LIVING IN PHILADELPHIA.

One of the causes of the high cost of living in the Quaker City has been discovered by the Bureau of Municipal Research. It is alleged to be short weights and short measure by dealers in provisions, groceries and other commodities sold to the masses of the people. The municipal research campaign has been very carefully conducted, it is announced, and the conclusion arrived at, according to the figures secured, is that seventy per cent. of Philadelphia dealers give short weight and short measure. This cuts down the purchasing power of the poor man's money in an appreciable degree and greatly increases the cost of living.

The Philadelphia investigation of coal dealers showed conclusively that they are as expert as short weight artists as the grocerymen and dealers in other lines. The shortage per ton in the sale of coal ranged from 62 to 393 pounds. The investigations among grocerymen and other dealers showed weight and measure shortage as great as that in the case of coal dealers.

The work of the Bureau of Municipal Research in Philadelphia may result in some more or less practical action to prevent dishonest dealers from robbing the public through giving short weight and measure. It would seem that the time for practical action has arrived in a city where seventy per cent. of the dealers are utterly dishonest and unworthy of public patronage.

Philadelphia is not the only city filled with dishonest dealers. They may be found everywhere, but probably in less numbers than seems to be the case in Philadelphia. The condition of affairs there is amazing and startling, as citizens of the remainder of the country have always been disposed to regard the people of Philadelphia as being of a higher order of character than these investigations indicate. It is not probable that the business men in other lines are more honorable in their dealings than the classes mentioned; and, if this be true, business dealing must have descended to a very low plane in Philadelphia.

It is the discovery of facts such as those disclosed in this case which force so many people to the conclusion that government control or supervision of everything imaginable is desirable and necessary. The country is being driven to socialism on the one hand to accept government centralization ideas on the other by dishonesty and rascality in the ranks of business men as well as among public servants and those in official station. The people of Philadelphia, having been apprised of the fact that the men with whom they trade daily have been systematically robbing them, and having small facilities for protecting themselves from dishonest dealers, will presently demand municipal supervision of grocery stores and coal yards or municipally owned markets and fruit stands.

It is passing strange that men who have sufficient intelligence to engage successfully in business cannot discover for themselves that honesty is the best business policy; and if they have no regard for honesty as a principle, arrive at the conclusion that it pays to be honest as a matter of policy.

THE OBSERVANCE OF NATIONAL CIVIC DAY IN GREENSBORO.

The Telegram is pleased to add a word to what has been said in various quarters in support of the civic department work of the Greensboro Woman's Club, and the proposed observance of National Civic Day on tomorrow, March 10th. The work of preparation has been so efficiently conducted by the ladies that it is a foregone conclusion the celebration of the day here will prove an unqualified success. The Telegram urges all the people of the city to interest in this departmental work of the woman's organization. It is a branch of club work with which, doubtless, many people are unfamiliar, but the dissemination of information is certain to result in making friends for the movement. Let all exhibit some interest in the celebration on tomorrow and, if possible, be present at the exercises.

This is an age of thoughtful study of economic problems and of consideration of civic questions; an age in which many people are striving for the uplift of humanity, for the improvement of conditions which surround the people, especially in centers where the population is congested. It is the day in which leaders of thought and of action are striving for better social conditions, for the higher and better home life and for desirable changes in matters affecting the public welfare. There are movements for just and economical management of public affairs, for improved municipal conditions; efforts to stimulate civic pride and to make cities more beautiful, more attractive, more sanitary, more satisfying places of residence. There are in these movements, as in others affecting the public welfare, some things objectionale and all of them have their quota of cranks and riders of hobbies; but out of this multitude of counsel, this multiplicity of planning and riot of endeavor is to come the safer and saner, the nobler and purer conditions and life of the future. The end may be anticipated without fear. The country is moving forward to the noon time of a better day.

The women of the civic movement are contributing their part to the realization of things long sought by the leaders of movements for improved conditions. One of the things they can do successfully, and are doing valiantly, is the work of instilling into the minds of the children correct ideas with regard to civic matters. The coming generations, as a result of their labors, are to be the heirs of a goodly heritage of right thinking and correct living. For these reasons the women engaged in the civic movement in Greensboro should have the co-operation of all who have the advancement of the city in view and who believe that the greater, growing Greensboro should develop along none but approved lines.

NEWSPAPER OPINION.

Certainly He Never Got the Hook.

Nobody, we believe, ever accused Rockefeller of having the hookworm.—Charleston News and Courier.

The Burning Issue.

The conservation of our natural resources is lost sight of now that so many people are absorbed in the conservation of their political resources.—Washington Herald.

Can This Be True?

Because a woman in Atlanta talked an hour and a half on a stretch there are some who think she is crazy. From this distance that seems to have been the act of a perfectly normal female.—Savannah Press.

The Horse Decides.

The new harem skirt is so like the ordinary riding habit of women that a Philadelphia crowd of toughs cannot tell the difference; but the rule of differentiation is very simple: When the lady has a horse with her it is a riding habit.—Mobilpe Register.

Goodwin and Matrimony.

And now comes Nat Goodwin to deny that matrimony is a habit with him. As Nat has been married only four times we are willing to believe that in his case it has been merely a series of accidents.—Montgomery Advertiser.

And Endless Screw.

With a permanent garrison of 6,000 soldiers at the Panama Canal, the need for a larger army will be pressed upon the attention of the country. Then the navy will have to be increased to protect the garrison. To protect the navy, the canal forts from time to time will have to be strengthened. Then more army again.—Springfield Republican.

Mr. Bailey and the People.

In his speech defending Mr. Lorimer, Senator Bailey, of Texas, said: "Have we fallen to such a low estate in the United States Senate that we must stoop to the earth and kiss the ground our constituents walk upon."

No one expects Senators to "kiss the ground our constituents walk upon?" but it is an old-time Democratic notion that Senators, as well as Representatives, should show due concern for the well defined principles for which they stood prior to election day. It is also an old-fashioned Democratic notion that when a man discovered (as Lorimer must have discovered) that bribe money was used in electing him to office he would not wait to be removed from office (provided he were innocent) but would retire in defnse of his own honor.

No, Senator Bailey, the people do not ask Senators to "kiss the ground their constituents walk upon." They do ask, however, that they refrain from licking the boots of trust magnates and doing the bidding of systems that prey upon the people—The Commoner.

Man wants but little, the poets sing,
But little does he crave,
But woman, she wants everything

GEORGE WHITE, BLACK, IN ROLE OF HIRAM HAYSEED

Officers McFarland and Hepler last night arrested Arthur Huntley, George Rudd and Henry Martin, all colored, on the charge of gambling. At the same time the officers arrested Macy Watson and Maude Benton, two colored damsels, on the charge of retailing. The negroes were placed in the calaboose to repose until the hour for Municipal court this morning.

George White, colored, of Climax, came to the city yesterday and, according to his statement, he was enticed to the home of Macy Watson on Mills Row, Warnersville, where he was robbed of about $17 which he happened to stuff into his vest pocket for change before leaving the country village of Climax. George, on his arrival at the home of the Watson woman, was introduced to Macy and Maude Benton, both of whom urged him to buy some whiskey. He purchased three pints and "set up" the negroes present. While he was feeling good from the effects of the liquor some of the negroes relieved him of his change. As soon as he missed his money George came uptown and notified the police.

The officers went down and found the three negro men playing "skin" with much gusto, it being evident that they were gambling with the money taken from the Climax darkey. All were taken in charge and the whole affair will be aired before Judge Eure this morning.

STATE PAPERS ON CHANGE IN OWNERSHIP OF TELEGRAM.

"Old Hands" In Charge.

The new owners of the Greensboro Telegram have taken hold with a vim. Of course, like old-handers, because each owner is a man of extensive newspaper experience. The editorial columns of The Telegram are bright and good, and the news columns are fresh and crisp. Indeed a fine start has been made, with a promise of much better things.—Wilmington Dispatch.

Alabamians Get North Carolina Newspaper.

Mr. H. G. Braxton, of the real estate firm of McConnell & Braxton, has purchased a half interest in the Greensboro Telegram, a morning newspaper published in Greensboro, N. C., and will leave Birmingham next week to reside in that city, and assume the business management of the paper.

Associated with Mr. Braxton in the ownership and management of the paper is Mr. J. T. Fain, who recently sold the Anniston Evening Star, and who has acquired a half interest in The Telegram. He will be directly in charge of the editorial and news departments of the paper.

Both Mr. Braxton and Mr. Fain are well known and popular in Birmingham and Alabama, and have been identified with the newspaper publishing business for years. The former was actively engaged in the newspaper business in this city for fifteen years, up to a short while ago, when he entered the real estate business, and achieved success in this field of work. Mr. Fain is a practical newspaper man, and owned and conducted the Anniston Star for three years, making a success of that paper.

Both of these young men are well equipped to achieve success in their new field, and their many friends in Alabama will note their future career with interest. They will make extensive improvements in the newspaper they have purchased, and will endeavor to give the people of Greensboro a live, up-to-date publication. The Telegram has been established a number of years, and Greensboro is regarded as an inviting newspaper field.—Birmingham, Ala., Ledger.

And it's what a man has been that makes him what he is.

When you hear a man say that he feels better when he works, it's your cue to make a getaway.

Strenuous Session of Legislature Ends

combe; Martin, of Washington; Pharr, Rascoe, Sigmon, Sikes, Starbuck and Williams.

Although the senators and legislative attaches were tired and worn out from the strenuous work of the past several days, all seemed in a happy frame of mind and from the time the session opened today until shortly afternoon, a recess was taken to give time for completing the enrollment of bills for ratification. During the recess there was music by the Confederate drum corps and popular and patriotic songs by the senators and ladies in the galleries. General jollification was indulged in by everybody and the impromptu speeches of a number of senators gave pleasing echoes of the session about to close. Many expressions of staunch friendships formed and regretful separations were made and the morning hours were whiled away most delightfully.

After the recess President Newland announced the appointment of Senator Hawkins, of Warren, and Senator Cobb, of Robeson, as members on the part of the Senate to consider the advisability of consolidating the agricultural department and the A. & M. College.

A joint resolution was adopted by a rising vote thanking the Capital Club, Elks Club and State Club for the many courtesies extended to the legislators.

Senator Bassett arose to a question of personal privilege in reference to a publication in the Raleigh morning paper that the anti-trust law having been written by a Republican. He said the bill which passed was the bill of the Senate judiciary committee and would meet all the needs for anti-trust legislation and he gave the measure his hearty endorsement.

Among a great number of acts of the Legislature ratied today the more important follow:

Increase the salary of the commissioner of labor and printing to $2,400.

Pertaining to the municipal court of Greensboro.

Charter East Carolina Teacher Training school.

Require railroads to provide two windows at stations of 2,000 and more inhabitants for pulling mileage.

Appoint members of county board of education.

Authorize county commissioners to make appropriations for road demonstration work.

Relating to the appropriations for Confederate pensions in North Carolina.

Incorporate tht Greensboro, Roxboro & Norfolk Railway.

An act to raise revenue.

Incorporate the Piedmont & Forsyth Railway.

An epithet is applied to a man during like, while an epitaph doesn't show up until after his demise.—Chicago News.

SHOES AND HAIR-CUTS

"The shoe business is just like a barber shop. Give a man a poor haircut and he may not find it out till he gets home and his wife makes him turn 'round seven times for inspection. But you can bet tht next hair-cut will be in another shop. Sell a man a pair of "good-lookers" which will not stand up under wear, and he may not know it for a few days, but you might as well put a smallpox sign on your store and expect him to visit it as to hope for him to come back for another pair."

We sell the famous Bostonian shoes at this store, the kind that make a man come back for another pair and keep on coming back again and again. Hundreds of the best people in this city long ago acquired the Bostonian habit and wear these excellent shoes season after season, summer and winter.

The new styles for spring are here ready for your inspection. Oxfords and high cuts, in Gun Metal, Vici, Patent Colt and Tan, $3.50, $4.00, $4.50 and $5.00.

Little Man But Big Manager

The Charlotte News says:

"Rabbit" Doyle is not only the smallest player the Carolina Association will have this season, but he is the smallest manager, in point of size only, in any league known. Doyle is really a midget. He's married, too, and with his wife is now in Greensboro whipping the Patriots into shape.

Entertainment Postponed.

The Woman's Betterment Association of the Hodgin school have postponed their entertainment, which was to have been given last night, until a later date as the ladies were unable to make preparations on account of the weather. The date of the entertainment will be announced soon and all are urged to hold their invitations until the entertainment is put on.

A Quaint Introduction.

An old Missourian recalls the quaint speech with which an old Federal soldier once introduced General James Shields to a Missouri audience. The introduction included a high tribute to Stonewall Jackson's generalship. Said the old Union soldier:

"Friends and Fellow Citizens—Allow me to introduce General James Shields, a citizen of two countries, a hero of two wars, general in two armies, a senator from two states and the man who came nearer whipping Stonewall Jackson than any other man ever did," and here, looking around and seeing no ladies in the audience, he added, "but didn't do it by a d——d sight!"—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Announcements

For Commissioner of Public Safety.

To the People of Greensboro:

I hereby announce my candidacy as Commissioner of Public Safety of the City of Greensboro, embracing Fire, Police, Sanitary and Inspection Departments.

Respectfully,
E. A. BROWN.

For Mayor.

To the Citizens of Greensboro:

I hereby announce my candidacy for the office of Mayor and Commissioner of Public Accounts and Finances of the City of Greensboro.

If elected I will advocate broad and progressive policies of government within the bounds of safe and ecenomical business. And I shall endeavor to faithfully and efficiently perform the duties of the office, without fear or favor, but with courtesy and square dealing toward all the people.

Very respectfully,
THOMAS J. MURPHY.

For Commissioner of Public Works.

This is to announce that I am a candidate for Commissioner of Public Works in the City of Greensboro.

I feel I can perform the duties of this office acceptably to the public, as for the last six years my work has been exclusively street and road work.

I shall be grateful for your support.

Respectfully,
J. G. FOUSHEE, JR.

Made a Great Hit.

A well known ventriloquist was invited to give a performance at a big institution in connection with some charity, and he heard that steps were being taken to insure for him a large yet critical audience, who would be close enough to watch his every movement. The night came, the attendants carried on three "lay" figures on chairs, and the ventriloquist received a great ovation from those assembled. His performance was unusually brilliant, and notwithstanding the quips and songs which he went through his muscles showed no evidences of his art. The changes of voice were marvelous, and the astonished crowd at the close of the exhibition gave him a rousing cheer. Again and again they called him back, while he expressed his pleasure by innumerable bows. At last the cheering ceased and the artist was permitted to retire. Hardly had he done so when the three "lay" figures got up from their chairs and walked off the stage. The ventriloquist had employed three friends to impersonate his usual mechanical figures, and he had tricked every one of his audience.

A man is never too old to learn that he knows a lot of things he should forget.

...A... Transformation

Involving a Dramatic Scene on St. Patrick's Day.

By THOMAS G. O'GRADY

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

Pat Doolan and Maggie McShane were a young couple living in Killarney town, Ireland, and at the time this story begins were not out of their teens. Pat was a fine strapping young fellow and good looking, though he was so poor that his clothes were ragged—it's not every man whose manly beauty will show to advantage when his bare knees are peeping through his trousers and a tuft of his curly hair protrudes through a hole in his hat. But when Pat smiled that good natured smile of his clothes were forgotten and he was taken right into the hearts of those he smiled upon. As for Maggie, she was a housemaid in a family whose place bordered on one of the lakes, and she was always well dressed. She had a real Irish complexion, as white as milk and as red as a rose. There was so much mingling between the white and the red that if was impossible to tell where the one began and the other ended.

Pat and Maggie did a lot of walking about together on the banks of the lakes, and they were always noted for the difference in their appearance, Pat's being in such marked contrast to Maggie's. But if Maggie's clothes were spick and span and Pat's falling to pieces, Maggie's face wore a serious cast, while Pat's was always alight. His rags could not overcome the cheerfulness of his disposition nor chill his generous heart, for whenever he would meet any one worse dressed than himself he would sing out:

"Arrah, bedad, man, go sell your togs to a farmer to put up for a scarecrow."

Then Pat would thrust his hand in his pocket, and if by any possibility he should find a ha'penny there he would hand it out, saying, with a twinkle in his eye:

"Go buy a new suit of clothes."

The trouble with Pat was not that he was lazy, but that he was the kind of young man who needed opportunity. And what opportunity was there for him in a region where the land had all been taken up long ago by the gentry? Was not the road leading around the lakes so hemmed in by the estates of the aristocracy that the beauty of the scenery was shut off completely? What was a young man to do who had neither land nor money and whose only work—if he could get it—would be dressing himself in livery and waiting on a master?

"Maggie," said Pat one day when he and his sweetheart were sitting on the bank of the lake near Maggie's mistress' estate, "Oi'm goin' to Ameriky."

"Oh, Pat!" exclaimed Maggie, her heart falling like the mercury in a barometer before a storm.

"Yes, Oi'm goin' to Ameriky, where they say gold dollars as big as cart wheels are rollin' around in the streets and all a fellow has to do is to pick 'em up. Whin Oi've collected a lot of 'em Oi'll send for ye."

"But, Pat, how're ye goin' to get to Ameriky?"

"Worruk me passage."

"In the cabin?"

"In the cabin! What would Oi look loike in the cabin in these togs? Oi'll go as a coal heaver. D'ye suppose Oi'd be dancin' around offerin' tay to the leddies and gintlemen whin I can get a much more respectable job below? And do ye suppose Oi'll be lettin' the muscles of me arrm grow soft whin Oi can keep 'em hard?"

"But how're ye goin' to git to the ship?"

"Walk. What were me legs given me for? Shurely not for dancin', because Oi've no illigant clothes, no grasshopper coat, for balls and parties. Oi'll walk to Queenstown and go in the first ship that'll take me."

Maggie had none of that happy-go-lucky disposition which was at the bottom of all her lover's actions. But Pat's disposition was not only happy-go-lucky; he was a natural gambler. His proposed move to America seemed to Maggie a jump in the dark. Pat was looking at the chances. There were surely none for him in Ireland, and there might be some for him in America. Ergo, America was the place for him. As to his getting there, why, any one can go anywhere. All he has to do is to go.

On the morning before Pat's departure he stood with Maggie on the banks of the lake where they had stood so often before and would probably never stand together again. They were looking out on the beautiful scenery, though it is questionable if they saw it. The mingled boughs of beeches, elms and oaks were putting on their summer apparel. Ivy vines springing from a tangle of holly and arbutus clung to the taller trunks. Beyond all this was the placid bosom of the lake, contrasting with the emotions in the hearts of the parting lovers.

"Don't be cryin' loike that, Maggie, dear," said Pat. "This is a beautiful scene and one we both love, to be sure, but whin ye see me ag'in ye'll be lookin' on a man dressed loike a gintleman. They say a man can do anything he loikes in that free land, and maybe Oi'll be wearin' the wig and gown of a judge or the uniform of a general. How would ye loike to see me marshalin' a regiment o' sojers? Mebbe Oi'll be governor or president or somep'n loike that."

"Oh, Pat, ye have sich wild dreams!"

Then Pat kissed her, took up his pack, slung it on to the other end of a staff and was about to set forth on his journey when Maggie handed him an envelope.

"It's for me cousin Bridget, who wint to Ameriky last year. She's workin' in one o' the hotels in Ameriky."

"Which wan?"

"Oi don't know. If ye don't foind her the week afther landin' open it and read what the writin' says."

"Oi'll foind her, sure," said Pat, and with a last embrace he started off with head erect at a strapping pace down the road.

Maggie waited till he had gone to a point where she could see him through an opening in the trees on the crest of a hill. He turned and threw her a kiss.

Firing up didn't trouble Pat a bit; it was when he reached the great city of New York, where "dollars as big as cart wheels were rolling about in the streets," that the real fight began. He didn't happen to meet Maggie's cousin Bridget, and, concluding that America was, after all, too big a country to warrant a search for her, he put the letter away. Indeed, he had no time for anything but making his living. He soon got a job, though a small one, and hadn't been in New York a month before he cast off his threadbare suit forever, donning a new one in its stead.

Pat spent a couple of years with a plumber learning the trade. The apprentice was smart and not only became a plumber, but a boss plumber, and four years after having landed set up for himself.

Pat had a great advantage in his cheery disposition. He became very popular with his associates, and, since popularity is an essential feature of leadership, he became a leader in a small way. A politician, perceiving his influence, took him up and made him one of his lieutenants. Pat developed fine political instincts. He had the art of turning down all grumblers among his adherents with that imperturbable smile of his. This is a power in politics. If he was obliged to give four plums to eight heelers, all of whom had worked equally well "for the ticket," he would give four of them a plum each, while every one of the other four men received a smile, an encomium and a promise for "next time."

Pat did not forget Maggie. Several times he made ready to send for her, but every time something happened to prevent. Then he began to make money, and it occurred to him that it would be a fine thing to go over, marry Maggie in Ireland and bring her home, just as the quality do. He wrote to her to that effect, but she wrote back that such a plan would be too great a waste of funds. So in the end Pat sent her a draft for plenty to buy her a first class ticket, but Maggie, who was of a frugal turn of mind and could not realize Pat's change of condition, would not come over in any berth above second class.

Now, it happened that when Maggie reached New York Pat was engaged in matters that required all his attention. He sent one of his workmen to meet her, but it happened that the man was a very stupid person. And as for Maggie, she had never looked upon a town bigger than Killarney, never seen a body of water bigger than the lake on which she had lived and, having always been a housemaid, had no head for taking care of herself. She missed the man who had been sent to meet her. Fortunately her affairs for passing the immigrant authorities were in first class condition, and she had no trouble with them. But when she was landed at the dock in a strange city, with no one to tell her where to go, her heart sank within her.

Some one looked in a directory for her and found the address of Pat's shop. Then he put Maggie and her belongings on to a trolley car, told her to ask for a transfer, take another line and so mystified her that she didn't know what to do. Riding up the street, she saw floating in the breeze the green banner of Ireland, harp and all. It was a welcome sight. When the car reached a broad thoroughfare it was stopped by a crowd. Maggie got out and was told a procession was about to pass. Some one invited her to get up on a stoop, where she could see, and she accepted.

Presently she heard music coming, and a man on horseback approached. He wore a "grasshopper coat" and a silk hat, and a green sash covered with rosettes hung from his left shoulder.

"Arrah, mushla," exclaimed Maggie, "it's my Pat!"

There was Pat sure enough caracoling as marshal of a dozen or more Irish societies celebrating St. Patrick's day.

"Pat," cried Maggie, "it's good luck I've seen you."

Pat could not have heard her, but at that moment he happened to turn his eyes toward her and saw her gesticulating at him. He rubbed his eyes and, being satisfied that she was really his Maggie, waved his baton for a halt, threw himself from his horse and elbowed his way through the crowd toward her. Then when the grand marshal took the Irish immigrant in his arms and smothered her with kisses a shout arose from a thousand throats.

After the wedding, which occurred the same evening, Pat remembered the letter he had brought for her cousin Bridget. He was about to hand it to her when he checked himself.

"What's in it anyway?" he said.

Tearing it open, he took out a five pound note.

Maggie had supplied him with her savings, hoping when he reached the foreign shore and did not find Bridget he would use it.

This time when Pat took Maggie to his arms a tear stood in his eye.

A Change of Opinion.

Some years ago a noted warrior of the Potawatamie tribe presented himself to the Indian agent at Chicago as one of the chief men of his village, observing with the customary simplicity of the Indian that he was a very good man and a good American and concluding with a request for a dram of whisky.

The agent replied that it was not his practice to give whisky to good men, that good men never asked for whisky and never drank it when it was offered to them and that it was bad Indians only who demanded whisky.

"Then," said the Indian, "me —— rascal."—"Modern Eloquence."

Eager to Please.

One of the smaller hotels in Market street serves meals very cheaply. They have a table d'hote there for 30 cents, and, as might be imagined, the viands are not the best. The proprietor is a jolly good fellow and is a noted humorist. This keeps him from being annoyed by the frequent kicks made to him by his touchy patrons. The other day a most fastidious gentleman complained.

"What do you call that?" he asked of the hotel man.

"Butter, sir! What else?" retorted the boniface.

"Why, I'd sooner eat axle grease than that butter," snapped the patron.

"John," called the hotel man to one of the waiters, "run out to the kitchen and get the gentleman some of that axle grease we use on the elevator."—Philadelphia Times.

Attacks School Principal.

A severe attack on school principal, Chas. B. Allen, of Sylvania, Ga., is thus told by him. "For more than three years," he writes, "I suffered indescribable torture from rheumatism, liver and stomach trouble and diseased kidneys. All remedies failed till I used Electric Bitters, but four bottles of this wonderful remedy cured me completely." Such results are common. Thousands bless them for curing stomach trouble, female complaints, kidney disorders, biliousness, and for new health and vigor. Try them. Only 50c. at Fariss-Klutz Drug Co.

Smoking Before Meals.

People will persist in smoking, even after they have read the following from that eminent authority, the London Lancet:

Smoking just before meals is to be deprecated, because the pungency of the pyroligneus products contained in tobacco smoke renders the buccal mucosa insensitive to alimentary stimulation. In fact, the effect is to dull or abolish the olfacto-gustatory reflex, thus depriving us of what Pawlow calls "appetite juice."

Self Confidence.

"Do you believe in all the views you advocate?"

"Yes," replied Senator Sorghum, after some hesitation, "I do, but I doubt whether a less skillful reasoner than myself would be able to convince me of the correctness of some of them."—Washington Star.

A Special Medicine For Kidney Ailments.

Many elderly people have found in Foley's Kidney Remedy a quick relief and permanent benefit from kidney and bladder ailments and from annoying urinary irregularities due to advancing years. Isaac N. Regan, Farmer, Mo., says: "Foley's Kidney Remedy effected a complete cure in my case and I want others to know of it."—Howard Gardner.

A man never hires a brass band to herald his coming out at the little end of the horn.

Some men are as easily rattled as others are hard to shake.

An Appetizer.

Of sporting offers made by the large eaters of old that made to Charles Gustavus of Sweden when he was besieging Prague is worthy of recall. A peasant offered for the king's amusement to devour a large hog then and there. General Koenigsmark, as runs the tale, suggested that one with such an appetite ought to be burned as a sorcerer, on which the peasant said to the king, "Sir, if your majesty will make that old gentleman take off his spurs I will eat him before I begin the pig."

refreshment. When he got back to his compartment he found the Scotchman sitting where he had left him and looking more dour and solemn than ever.

"It's a long, wearisome journey," said the Englishman when the train started by way of making conversation.

The Scotchman looked at him with an angry frown.

"So it ought to be," he replied frigidly; "it costs two pounds nineteen and ninepence."

A Cold, LaGrippe, then Pneumonia.

FRECKLES

Don't Hide Them With a Veil; Remove Them With the New Drug.

An eminent skin specialist recently discovered a new drug, othine—double strength, which is so uniformly successful in removing freckles and giving a clear complexion that it is sold by Howard Gardner under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it fails.

Dont' hide your freckles under a veil; get an ounce of othine and remove them. Even the first night's use will show a wonderful improvement, some of the lighter freckles vanishing entirely. It is absolutely harmless, and and cannot injure the most tender skin.

Be sure to ask Howard Gardner for the double strength othine; it is this that is sold on the money back guarantee.

HIDDEN DANGERS.

Nature Gives Timely Warnings That No Greensboro Citizen Can Afford to Ignore.

DANGER SIGNAL NO. 1 comes from the kidney secretions. They will warn you when the kidneys are sick. Well kidneys excrete a clear, amber fluid. Sick kidneys send out a thin, pale and foamy, or a thick, red, ill-smelling urine, full of sediment and irregular of passage.

DANGER SIGNAL NO 2 comes from the back. Back pains, dull and heavy, or sharp and acute, tell you of sick kidneys and warn you of the approach of dropsy, gravel and Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills help sick kidneys. Here is proof in the statement of a nearby resident.

J. A. Harder, Davis St., Burlington, N. C., says: "I was troubled a great deal by backache and dull pains through my loins and sides. I often noticed that the kidney secretions were unnatural and passed entirely too frequently. Upon a friend's advice, I decided to try Doan's Kidney Pills and procured a box. I had used them but a short time before my kidneys were restored to their normal condition. I heartily recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to other kidney sufferers."

DRESSING A SHIP.

A Man-of-War Wears More Than One Suit of Clothes.

INNER AND OUTER GARMENTS.

Besides Its Coat of Armor Plate It Has a Special Set of Underclothes to Protect the Vital Parts of Its Anatomy, Mineral Wool Mufflers.

Battleships wear coats of stout armor plate, as everybody knows, but everybody does not know that they wear undergarments which are produced chiefly from cocoanuts. Your most powerful man-of-war is really a very delicate object and requires special underclothing so that some vital parts of its anatomy may not become too cold and so that other equally vital portions may not become too hot.

From stem to stern, which is another way of saying from head to toe, your enormous super-Dreadnought is enveloped in an undergarment placed immediately behind its topcoat or armor plate. This is its special mackintosh, or, rather, waterproof, which acts as a protection from fire as well as water.

In the ordinary way if a shot pierced the side of a battleship water would pour in at the hole and possibly the ship might sink, but this is obviated by providing a backing to the armor. Great secrecy is kept in the various navies regarding the material used and its arrangement.

In many of the latest battleships, however, the coating is made of cellulose, which again is obtained from the fibrous cocoanut rind. Cellulose possesses the peculiar property of swelling immediately if it comes in contact with salt water. Therefore the moment that water pours in at a hole at the ship's side the cellulose almost instantly expands and so closes the aperture. Of course the cellulose is especially treated in order to render it fireproof.

A man-of-war has its vitality enormously diminished if certain portions of it become too cold, in much the same way as its human tenants. Accordingly its boiler and steam pipes are clothed with "jackets." In some cases the jackets are made of ordinary blanketing, others of a fibrous clay-like composition or even of close grained wood. In general the material used for a ship's underclothing of this description consists of mineral wool.

However, the great ship is more likely to suffer from the effects of heat than from those of cold. There is always the danger owing to the newer type of machinery employed that the powder magazines may get too hot.

In the latest men-of-war the stores are surrounded by a thick coating of mineral wool. Mineral wool, by the way, has nothing whatever to do with wool, as it consists of a mass of snowy threads of a kind of glass. It is made by blowing jets of high pressure steam through the furnaces in the manufacture of iron and steel.

Enormous quantities of this strange variety of wool are used on board for the purposes of underclothing the bulkheads and the more delicate portions of the ship's body. This invaluable substance acts equally well as a protector from heat and from cold. It is such a remarkable nonconductor of heat that it is used for covering the refrigerators and the cold storage chambers and therefore the explosive stores.

In the dockyards all men who are employed in packing the mineral wool in the spaces on the ships are obliged to wear masks. This is to prevent the sharp needlelike particles from being inhaled and so causing chest troubles of fatal character.

The ammunition rooms themselves are kept cool by a refrigerating plant in addition to being clothed in mineral wool, the same applying to the ammunition passages. The wool is also packed between the double bulkheads which separate the boiler spaces from the other portions of the vessel. Altogether the uses of the mineral wool on board are extremely numerous. Even reindeer hair is to be met with on board in the capacity of a particular sort of underclothing. This material is very light—considerably lighter than cork, for instance—and it is not so subject to decay. For this reason among its many uses it is of great value as a filling for the life buoys.—Boston Transcript.

Warning to Railroad Men

Look out for severe and even dangerous kidney and bladder trouble resulting from years of railroading. Geo. E. Bell, 639 Third St., Fort Wayne, Ind., was many years a conductor on the Nickel Plate. He says: "Twenty years of railroading left my kidneys in terrible condition. There was a continual pain across my back and hips and my kidneys gave me much distress, and the action of my bladder was frequent and most painful. I got a supply of Foley Kidney Pills and the first bottle made a wonderful improvement and four bottles cured me completely. Since being cured I have recommended Foley Kidney Pills to many of my railroad friends." Howard Gardner.

The Scrap Book

Startled Her All Right.

When the first shipment of frozen eggs arrived in London from Australia their extreme hardness astonished the brokers to whom they were consigned.

HE BANGED AN EGG.

One man, calling at a broker's office, was amazed to see him taking aim at the wall with an egg.

"What the dickens are you at?" he said. But the broker let drive, the only result being a slight dent in the wall.

The thing being explained, the man took a couple of the eggs, put them in his pocket and left to startle his wife. Arriving home, he waited till the family was assembled for dinner, and then, with a confident smile, he banged an egg at the newly decorated dining room wall.

But the smile quickly faded from his face. The egg had thawed.

Fight the Battle Out.

What if the currents of your life
Are foiled and vexed and go amiss
And trouble your whole portion is?
Faint not. All victory comes through strife.

What if a thousand shafts of wrong
And grievous obstacles and hate
Pursue you early, long and late?
Yield not, but keep your courage strong.

What if the world seems simply made
To sweep your dearest hopes away
And balk your efforts day by day?
Care not. Move onward unafraid.

What if your best work brings but pain,
Perplexity and loss and doubt?
Faint not, but fight the battle out.
No worthy life is lived in vain.

The Loser Won.

He had been freshly washed and was somewhat slicked up, but he was unmistakably a hobo. He hesitated a moment at the door of a fashionable cafe and then bravely sauntered in. Walking to the bar, he ordered "a little liquor, please." The bartender scrutinized him dubiously for a few seconds, but finally placed the glass and bottle upon the counter. After filling the glass to the brim the man laid down 3 cents.

GRABBED A HANDFUL.

"You have made a mistake; those are not nickels, but pennies," admonished the bartender.

"Excuse me; my mistake," responded the tramp. Then he added:

"Well, since they are there, I'll just bet you the three pennies against a dime that I can drink the whisky without touching the glass."

The bartender, a little amused, accepted the proposition and the wager was on. Much to the surprise of the "wine clerk" the fellow deliberately picked up the glass and drank down the liquor in one gulp.

"Hold on, pard; you lose," called the barkeep.

"I know it. The three cents are on the bar," replied the bum as he sauntered over to the free lunch stand and grabbed a handful before departing.

The Absent Members.

The toastmaster didn't have a set list of speeches to announce, so he apportioned the talks among the liveliest speakers present as best he could. He did pretty well, too, until he announced "The toast 'Our Absent Members' will be responded to by Mr. Blank H. Dash." Then everybody laughed loud and long. Why? Because Mr. Blank H. Dash has lost an arm and a leg.

Small Change.

At a dinner given by Andrew Carnegie an eminent judge, seated halfway down the table, was deeply immersed in conversation with his neighbor when the host opened up the subject of the British coinage system and showed signs of wishing undivided attention.

"Every other civilized nation," he declaimed, "has the decimal system, while England adheres to the absurd and cumbrous table of pounds, shillings and pence." (Rap, rap, rap!)

The raps were for the judge, who remained absorbed in his own conversation. "And even farthings," continued the ironmaster—"is there anything else in finance so ridiculous as the farthing?" (Rap, rap!)

The judge glanced around somewhat impatiently.

"Judge G.," Mr. Carnegie called out, "why do the British continue their coinage of farthings?"

"To enable the Scotch to practice benevolence, Mr. Carnegie," returned the judge.—Success Magazine.

The Police Helped.

Five young gentlemen were dining together in a London club when one of them offered to bet that he could hold up traffic in a main street for a whole day. His companions promptly took the wager. The young man simply went out with some friends and pickaxes and dug up the street, while the police automatically diverted the traffic. Then the diggers went home and left the various authorities to correspond and argue as to who was responsible for the roped off areas and the general disorganization.

Asking Too Much.

In Scotland once a drunken man met a clergyman chasing his runaway dog on Sunday. "Tammas," said the breathless clergyman, "I am sorry to see you in this condition, but whistle for my dog. He is running away."

Tammas regarded the speaker with gravity and said: "Whustle? I may drink whisky, but I'll no whustle for ony dog on the Lord's day."

Fooled the Butcher.

The butcher smiled as the young woman, trimly clad and smiling to herself, crossed the street and approached the shop. "A bride," he said. "I bet she'll make some fool break."

"Give me a porterhouse steak, thick, as close as you can come to two pounds," she said. "No, not that one, nor that. I think I'll have to ask you to bring out a new quarter. No, I don't want two pounds and three-quarters. It will be just right if you cut out that large bone. That will do, thank you. This dime is smooth. I gave you perfectly good money and you may give me good money in change. That's better, thank you. Will you open the door, please?"

And when the butcher recovered he said to himself, "Well, I suppose it does a man good to get what's coming to him once in awhile."—Buffalo Express.

"Foley's Honey and Tar is the best cough remedy I ever used as it quickly stopped a severe cough that had long troubled me," says J. W. Kuhn, Princeton, Nebr. Just so quickly and surely it acts in all cases of coughs, colds, lagrippe and lung trouble. Refuse substitutes. Howard Gardner.

An Irish Duel.

The annals of the Emerald Isle bristle with incidents of dueling in which Irish humor, if not at all times Irish bravery, is conspicuous. On one occasion Sir Jonah Barrington fought a duel with a barrister named McNally. The latter had one leg shorter than the other and because it was his habit when in a hurry to take two thumping steps with the short leg to bring up the space made by the long one he was nicknamed "One Pound Two." McNally could get no one of his bar to fight him, so he challenged Barrington, who good naturedly exchanged shots in Phoenix park.

The baronet hit his opponent in the braces, then called the "gallows," and feared he had killed him. When the result was made known one of the seconds shouted, "Mac, you are the only rogue I ever knew who was saved by the gallows."

Delicately Formed

and gently reared, women will find in all the seasons of their lives, as maidens, wives and mothers, that the one simple, wholesome laxative remedy, which acts gently and pleasantly and naturally and which may be taken at any time, when the system needs a laxative, with perfect safety and really beneficial effects, is Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna.

It has that true delicacy of flavor which is so refreshing to the taste, that warming and grateful toning to the stomach which responds so favorably to its action and the laxative effect which is so beneficial to the system when, occasionally, its gentle cleansing is required.

COMMUNICATIONS.

AN OPEN LETTER.

North Carolina Public Service Company, City.

Gentlemen: Your circular letter of the 7th inst. "to the customers of the North Carolina Public Service Company" has just been received.

This change in the schedule of prices of gas and electricity was heralded by you through the local press as a great reduction. I am not a consumer of electricity but am of gas in a small way.

I would thank you to let the people know what is the total saving to the gas consumers of Greensboro under your new rates. You have all the figures necessary. Do you not think it would have been fair to the people, when you were inducing so many to put in gas stoves, to have told them that you expected to advance the rate from $1.00 to $1.35 per thousand cubic feet? Let us have light.

Yours truly,
R. R. KING.

Self-Denial Week.

The Salvation Army has every year a week of self-denial. This is a week to raise funds for its home and foreign missions. We have a large number of men and women in India, Korea, Russia and China who are working there, and as the work is not self-supporting, we in this and other countries are called upon to assist in keeping these missionaries supplied with the necessities of life. Greensboro is called upon to raise one hundred dollars to help in this undertaking. This fund is not all used for foreign missions but is used for the support of the twelve rescue homes, six orphan homes and the work in our slum settlements in the larger cities in this country. Donations will be thankfully received by the undersigned who will be glad to call at my address, or they can be sent by mail to 709 South Elm street. This money must be raised by the first of April. All over this amount will be used for the general relief work in Greensboro. No matter how large or small the donation is, give as God has given you.

WINNING A NAME.

The Incident That Crowned Mr. Kelly as "Honest John."

There have been many stories about the manner in which "Honest John" Kelly, the ex-umpire, first got his nickname. Mr. Kelly himself, according to a New York letter, holds that it came to him naturally, for even as a small boy the purity of his soul shone through his face.

"I think the first time I was ever called Honest John was when I was quite a youngster," said Kelly. "A man engaged as an ambulatory salesman of tinware observed the ingenuous countenance I presented to the world and hailed me. 'You look honest, boy,' said he. 'What might your name be?'

"'John,' said I, quite simply—'John'—just like that. 'Then hold my horse while I go in the saloon and get a drink,' said he. And so I held his horse while he went in the saloon and got a drink.

"But this was on lower Ninth avenue, in a day when the avenue's honors went to the man who could clean up the most cops in a given time. By and by the gang came along and beheld that wagon full of tinware. The peddler was detained within by a sore thirst, and they took the tinware, and then they came back and took the cushions off the wagon. Eventually, becoming daring, they unhitched the wagon and took it away.

"True to my trust, I stood there, holding the horse. And by and by the peddler came out of the saloon and sized up the situation. 'Well,' said he warmly, 'you're Honest John, all right. You saved the horse.'"

A New Brand.

A group of normal school girls from an interior New York town were together at a fashionable restaurant in Albany, bent upon a lark, which they agreed could best be attained by ordering some real drinks, like the men. The waiter, on being directed to bring "some drinks" all around, asked, "What kind?" The leader replied with firmness, "Cocktails."

"Yes, miss," said the waiter, "what kind of cocktails?"

This threw the girls into confusion until one of them saved the situation by suddenly exclaiming, "Oh, lager!"

It's funny how sympathetic some people are when it is useless.
